ON THE COVER: Edmund J. James, first president of the American Academy of Political and Social Science (1889-1901), who was the first professor of economics and director (1881-1896) of what became the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. As leader of the first social science faculty in the United States, he hired economists, sociologists, statisticians, historians, and journalists at Penn, many of whom, like James, had earned their doctorates in Germany in political economy. He went on to become president of both Northwestern University and the University of Illinois. An early defender of labor unions, James advocated improved conditions for working people as a way to prevent anarchy and socialism.
